Art Unit: 3652

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claims 1 and 7, the recitation that "the guide rail may form a complex path, including a path that ..." renders the claim scope unclear in that not only does it appear to be an optional limitation, but also appears to be an improper range within a range limitation.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1-3 and 5-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Canaday et al (US 6,668,991).

The applied reference has a common inventor with the instant application.

Based upon the earlier effective U.S. filing date of the reference, it constitutes prior art under 35 U.S.C. 102(e). This rejection under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) might be overcome either by a showing under 37 CFR 1.132 that any invention disclosed but not claimed in the reference was derived from the inventor of this application and is thus not the invention "by another," or by an appropriate showing under 37 CFR 1.131.

Canaday et al show a media storage library of the type set forth in the claims, including multiple library modules (enclosures), storage cell arrays, multiple robots, and multiple guide rails, wherein power and control signals are sent to the robots through the guide rails in an exclusive and uninterrupted fashion, and wherein the guide rails may form complex paths.

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Luffel et al (US 6,222,699, cited by applicant) in view of Benson et al (US 5,241,380).

Luffel et al show a modular media storage library essentially as claimed, including robots which receive exclusive and uninterrupted power through guide rails which form a complex path; however, control of the robots is handled by a wireless control module rather than through the rails.

Benson et al teach that it is desirable in an environment wherein an automated robotic vehicle runs along rails to send power and control signals through the rails. This is explicitly disclosed as an advantage over wireless communication systems. Note that the robot vehicle could include arms or other work elements, and that the rails may have different configurations.

It would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have modified the apparatus of Luffel et al by utilizing the rails to send control signals to the robots, as shown by Benson et al, as this would be simpler, cheaper, and more reliable than a wireless system.

Re claim 4, to have mounted the storage cells and guide rails on "walls", as broadly claimed, would have been a mere design expediency, particularly in the absence of any showing of criticality.

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
